

Arkansas Archeological Survey: Resources on the Web

---

The Arkansas Archeological Survey —

- » studies Arkansas's archeological heritage & maintains the state archeological site files
- » works with all people who desire or need to know about Arkansas's past:
  - state & federal agencies – land developers – park interpreters – property owners – Indian Tribes – teachers & students (K through college) – scientists & professional colleagues – local museums & community groups – individuals
- » educates the public about Arkansas archeology through training programs, lectures, websites, and other outreach

The Survey Home Page www.arkansasarcheology.org

From here you can navigate to find information about the Survey and Arkansas archeology – Read about recent & ongoing fieldwork – Read the state laws about antiquities & human burials – See publications available for sale and free download – Download a Teacher Packet – Get information on Arkansas Archeology Month with events & activities around the state – Link to other archeological websites including Archeological Parks in the U.S. – Find links to our interactive educational websites:

- Indians of Arkansas <http://arkarcheology.uark.edu/indiansofarkansas/index.html>

Explore the archeology & history of Indian people who lived in Arkansas from 12,000 B.C. to the present – Compare academic and Indian views about the past – Covers all major archeological periods with specific information on important sites – Includes learning exercises & writing prompts for middle school through college level

- Rock Art in Arkansas <http://arkarcheology.uark.edu/rockart/index.html>

Arkansas has a rich concentration of prehistoric American Indian rock art – Glimpse the world of ideas as expressed by ancient people through this intriguing art medium – Includes articles, a picture gallery & database of rock art images – Lesson plans & interactive learning activities for classroom use

---

The Arkansas Archeological Society www.arkarch.org

- » an organization for anyone who wants to learn about Arkansas archeology
- » hands-on experience doing real-life archeology in the field & lab
- » annual Training Program & other volunteer opportunities
- » get involved in your local chapter, where you can hear talks & join activities about archeology in Arkansas & beyond

