

These photos show the range of archeological work, from digging in the soil to analysis in the lab. In the field, two Arkansas Archeological Society volunteers excavate a unit with potential features outlined and exposed. In the lab, Dr. John Samuelsen prepares samples of animal bone for isotopic analysis.

